At Transforming Teams we're all about people, because we believe that better people make a better business.

“Transforming Teams helped us strengthen the management team with really good exercises.”

ANDREAS NORDBRANDT, BUSINESS LINE MANAGER, ATLAS COPCO

People are undeniably your most valuable company asset, but they also represent your greatest risk. When people work well together, they can achieve the seemingly impossible, but even the clearest organisational vision, the most infallible strategy or efficient work processes can't compensate for a poorly functioning team.

Developing your people is not just good business sense; it's the most important investment you can make.

Our programs utilise a unique blend of experiential learning – learning by doing – and discussion time, during which each participant's own experiences and insights are blended with theory to produce a stimulating, enjoyable, yet profound and lasting learning experience.

Our facilitators are experienced trainers and business professionals with backgrounds in areas such as business consulting, coaching, counselling, and postgraduate teaching. They have extensive industry experience and the skills required to create an engaging and non-threatening environment that enables people to improve awareness and develop themselves.

Choose from a number of established programs across a range of areas, or ask us to tailor custom programs to meet your organisation's specific needs. Our programs can be run indoors or outdoors to suit your choice of location and learning requirements.

At Transforming Teams we don't believe that training ends with the program – every participant takes away an action checklist to allow learnings to be transferred directly to the workplace. We can even follow up your training program with refresher sessions that address identified areas for improvement. Our programs vary from multi or full day workshops to 30 minute energisers that can be conducted during conferences or meetings to help fine-tune and focus your team.

We also understand the value of team bonding and the unity and passion that develops from conquering challenges together. Even our more light-hearted programs leave the team not only with practical learning outcomes, but with stronger relationships that act as a foundation for improved communication and a more positive attitude in the workplace.
